We, women of the western Amazon, call upon all Amazonian women and women around the world to unite. We must unite to protect nature, to defend our territories against extractive industries and combat inequality and injustice. And for this reason, we do not want it to be only women joining this struggle: this struggle belongs to everyone.

A Message From the Amazonian Women of the North

My heart is too burdened to have this blog sag with any more clutching and whining and despairing than my own. Selfish, I know. There are other places to go where you can clutch and whine and despair. Plus, when you are in the A&D place, you get a free pass to Selfish-Land for a while until you can climb out of the pit.
